

MOUNTAINEER LOOP. Everybody joins hands, and a circle left is done. The active couple goes forward under the lifted arms of the even couple, passing between the even partners. The lady of the active couple lets go of her partner's hand and goes around in back of the even gent, returning to her place. At the same time the active gent goes to his left, back of the even lady and to his place. So doing, the dancers of the even couple must turn from each other, but they do not let go of hands and go along under their own uplifted arms. The only unjoined hands in the figure are the active gent's right hand and his partner's left hand.
